The speaker recognized Representative Lozano who introduced Jack Willoughby, senior pastor, First Baptist Church, Kingsville, who offered the invocation as follows:

Our Heavenly Father, you are great and awesome and worthy of all praise. We humble ourselves before you and ask that your goodness come and your will be done. Set your favor upon the men and women of this 84th Session of the legislature. Guide them as they undertake the business of this day, for the issues before them will require a greater wisdom, discernment, and understanding. Give them confidence in the passion, vision, training, and experience that has equipped them for such a time as this.

We know that these days of growing population, diverse ethnicity, moral ambiguity, economic uncertainty, and terroristic threats make for some turbulent waters. But may they hear the word of God to the great leaders of the past: Do not be afraid; do not be dismayed, for the Lord your God is with you. (Joshua 1:5-9) Give them courage. Guard their integrity. Counsel their fears. Anoint them with power from on high. Fill them with calm assurance. Shield their lives, families, and staff with your protective hedge. Pour out your richest blessings upon them, upon our nation, and upon the people of the great State of Texas. I pray in the name of Jesus. Amen.

The speaker recognized Representative Metcalf who led the house in the pledges of allegiance to the United States and Texas flags.
